ORAL JUDGEMENT

#. On 18th October, 1999, Mr.Pathak, learned counsel for the petitioner made a statement before this court that in view of the subsequent developments which have taken place after filing of this writ petition, this writ petition may not now survive before this court. He prayed for time to file appropriate application. Nobody is present on behalf of petitioner nor any such application is filed.

#. Mr. Jay Shah learned counsel for the respondent no.2 submits that this writ petition now is not maintainable before this Court. The Central Government, by issuing a Notification has put in purview of the Central Administrative Tribunal, the service matters of the employees of Navodaya Vidhyalaya Management Samiti and this writ petition may be remitted to the Central Administrative Tribunal Bench at Ahmedabad. He has shown to the court the Notification of the Central Government also.

#. I also had earlier seen this Notification and many such matters were remitted to the concerned Central Administrative Tribunal. As a result of this subsequent development now this writ petition before this court is not maintainable and accordingly the same stands disposed of from the record of this court. Necessary entry may be made in this respect in the computer. The papers of the special civil application be sent forthwith to the Central Administrative Tribunal Bench at Ahmedabad. Rule discharged. Interim relief, if any, granted by this court stands vacated. No order as to costs.
